TO TEACHERS.

THIS book is designed to occupy a place not filled by any other of any series. This will appear from its peculiar features, as follows:

1. Every exercise may, with perfect propriety, be used either for reading or speaking.

2. The language, wherever desirable, has been simplified, in order to make the subjects intelligible to the young pupil.

Very few speeches can be found in which the sentiments are not so vailed in difficult words, as to be above the comprehension of this class of learners.

This difficulty is here obviated by the changes in language above mentioned.

3. For the same purpose, definitions and explanatory notes are extensively prefixed to the exercises.

4. The exercises are all very short. Much labor and thought have been devoted to condensation, in order to secure this important feature.

5. In consequence of the preceding peculiarity, the number of exercises (amounting to 216), and their variety, are much greater than in any similar work.

6. A novel, and, it is believed, an interesting and valuable feature, is the introduction of choruses, to be spoken, read, or sung in concert. Music adapted to them may be found on pages 227, 228.

Many of the Exercises in this volume are copyright property, and their use by others not permitted.

INTRODUCTION.

IN speaking, special attention should be paid to AR-TICULATION, EMPHASIS, INFLECTION, VOICE, and GESTURE.

I. ARTICULATION.

ARTICULATION is forming sounds into words or syllables by the organs of speech.

Observe the following directions:

I. AVOID DROPPING A VOWEL.

Incorrect.	Correct.	Incorrect.	Correct.
con-s'nant	con-so-nant.	an'mal	an- i -mal.
ar-g'ment	ar-gu-ment.	sens'ble	sens- i -ble.
fam'ly	fam- i -ly.	ped'nt-ry	ped-ant-ry.

II. AVOID SOUNDING A VOWEL INCORRECTLY.

Incorrect.	Correct.	Incorrect.	Correct.
$ ext{con-ser-nunt}$	con-so-nant.	an-er-mul	an- i -mal.
$\operatorname{ar-g} y\operatorname{-m} unt$	ar-gu-ment.	sens- $ub$ -ble	$\operatorname{sens-}i\text{-}\operatorname{ble.}$
fam- er -ly	fam- i -ly.	ped-unt-ry	ped-ant-ry

III. AVOID OMITTING A CONSONANT.

Incorrect.	Correct.
John an' James.	John and James.
The brightes' sky.	The $brightest sky$ .
Runnin', leapin', jumpin'.	Running, leaping, jumping.

QUESTIONS.—In speaking, to what should special attention be paid? What is Articulation? What is the first direction? The second? The third?

IV. AVOID MISPRONOUNCING SYLLABLES.

Incorrect.	Correct.
tol-rer-ble	tol-er-a-ble.
ac-ny-cy	ac-cu-ra-cy.
em-sa-ry	em-is-sa-ry.
mis- rur -ble	mis-er-a-ble.

V. AVOID BLENDING WORDS.

Incorrect.	Correct.
They ro don.	They rode on.
The shou tof triumph.	The shout of triumph.
Jame san dan.	James and Ann.

DIRECTIONS FOR PRACTICE.

I. First pronounce each word and then its vowel sound.

VOWEL.	WORD.	VOWEL.	WORD.	VOWEL.	WORD.	VOWEL.	WORD. V	OWEL.

III. Utter distinctly the difficult sounds in these

EXAMPLES.

His lips grow restless and his smile is scorn. He selected his texts with great care. Thou waft'st the skiffs over the cliffs.

Ringing, singing, bringing, flingings That last still night. That lasts till night. With short shrill shrieks. While, whiling, whispering.

If thou fall'st, thou fall'st a martyr. The tenth thousandth of the tenth thousandth. Collecting, projecting, and shocking, and rocking.

His limbs were strengthen'd by exercise. The chill precincts of the narrow house. Life's fitful fever over, he rests well.

II. EMPHASIS.

In speaking, we generally pronounce some words with more force than others, because the meaning of what we say depends most upon those words.

If I wish to know whether it is John or his brother who is sick, I speak the words John and brother with more force than the other words. I say,

Is it John or his brother who is sick? This increased force is called emphasis.

Emphasis is generally denoted by Italics: sometimes by CAPITALS.

EXAMPLES OF EMPHASIS. Did you see James or John? If we love others, they will love us. It is better to do good than evil.

REMARK 1.—Sometimes, in peculiar cases, low tones are used for emphasis; as,

They whispered with white lips; The foe! they come! they come!

REMARK 2.—Emphasis is also assisted by inflections, as is shown in the article on INFLECTION, page 16.

Sometimes, a word is emphasized merely on account of the importance of the idea, without reference to any other word or idea, as in the following

EXAMPLES.

To arms! to arms! to arms! they cry. Ah! lady, now full well I know, What 't is to be an orphan boy. HOLD! HOLD! for your lives!

QUESTIONS.—In speaking, do we pronounce all words with the same force? What do we call the increased force with which we pronounce some words? How is emphasis generally denoted? Give examples of emphasis. Give examples in which words are emphasized without reference to other words.

At other times, words are emphasized to express opposite, or contrasted ideas, as in the following

EXAMPLES.

It is more blessed to give, than to receive. It is easier to mend our faults, than to hide them. Study not to show knowledge, but to gain it.

In each of the preceding examples, there is one set of opposite, or contrasted words. In the first two following examples, there are two sets; in the last example, three sets.

EXAMPLES.

The simple love folly; the wise love wisdom. To err is human; to forgive, divine. Folly does wrong by rules; sense does right without them.

PAUSE FOR EMPHASIS.

Emphasis is often assisted by a pause before or after the emphatic word, as in the following examples, where it is marked thus, (--).

> Strike—for your altars and your fires, GOD—and your native land.

PAUSES IN POETRY.

In reading poetry, a slight pause should generally be made at the end of each line, and a still slighter one about the middle; as,

They are sowing their seed—in the daylight fair— They are sowing their seed—in the noonday's glare— They are sowing their seed—in the soft twilight.

QUESTIONS.—Give examples in which there is one set of opposite, or contrasted words. Give examples in which there are two sets. Three sets. What is said of the pause for emphasis? Give examples. Where should there be a slight pause in poetry? Where a still slighter pause?

III. INFLECTION.

INFLECTION is an upward or a downward slide of the voice.

The upward slide is called the RISING INFLECTION, and is marked thus, (~).

EXAMPLES OF THE RISING INFLECTION.

Will you go?Spoken thus, Will you go?Has he really gone?""Has he really gone?""Did you say yes??""

The downward slide is called the FALLING INFLEC-TION, and is marked thus, (`).

EXAMPLES OF THE FALLING INFLECTION. I will go". Spoken thus, I will ?? He has really gone". " He has really ?? I am truly sorry". " I am truly ??

A union of the rising and falling inflections on the same syllable is called the CIRCUMFLEX. It is marked thus,  $(\vee)$ , or thus,  $(\wedge)$ .

EXAMPLES OF THE CIRCUMFLEX.

Hath a dŏg mŏney? You say, we would have môney: Yoû, that spît on me.

QUESTIONS.—What is inflection? What is the rising inflection? Give examples. What is the falling inflection? Give examples. What is the circumflex? Give examples.

Sometimes, all the parts of a sentence are spoken in the same tone. This is called a MONOTONE, and is marked thus, (--).

EXAMPLES OF THE MONOTONE. Höly, höly, höly, is the Lörd Göd Almighty. Thüs säith the high and löfty One.

He may be your friend, but he is not mîne. He offers you his protêction. Yes, sûch protection, as vûltures give to làmbs.

MONOTONE.

Ay, go to the grave of buried love; There settle with thy conscience.

QUESTIONS.—What is a monotone? Give examples.

In the use of inflections, observe the following DI-RECTIONS.

FALLING INFLECTION.

DIRECTION 1.—Where the sense is complete, the falling inflection is generally used; as,

Go to the ant; consider her ways.

Hear wisdom's words'; obey her voice'.

DIRECTION 2.—Words that are emphatic generally have the falling inflection; as,

Charge, Chester, charge ! On, Stanley, on ! I insist upon this point; I urge it; I press it.

DIRECTION 3.—Questions which can not be answered by yes or no, generally have the falling inflection; as, Who lives there? (Ans. George.) What must I do?? (Ans. Nothing.)

RISING INFLECTION.

DIRECTION 4.—Where the sense is not completed, and a pause is made, the rising inflection is generally used; as, As the dew passes away', so life vanishes. The wind having ceased', they came on shore. Friends', countrymen', hear me.

DIRECTION 5.—When anything is denied or forbidden, the rising inflection is often used; as,

This is not an unusual case .

They are not fighting'; do not disturb them'.

DIRECTION 6.—Questions which can be answered by yes or no, generally have the rising inflection; as,

Will you deny' it? (Ans. No.)

Can you resist? (Ans. Yes.)

QUESTIONS.—What is the first direction for the use of the falling inflection? The second? The third? The first for the use of the rising inflection? (Direction 4.) The second? (Dir. 5.) The third? (Dir. 6.)

BOTH INFLECTIONS.

DIRECTION 7.—When things are spoken of as contrasted, or opposite to each other, one has the rising, and the other the falling inflection; as,

The young and the old, the rich and the poor, all die. One was the better man, the other the greater scholar. It is virtue, not wealth that is respected.

THE TEACHER can easily supply any further instruction on the subject, which he may judge desirable. See McGuffey's New ECLECTIC SPEAKER, pages 20 to 26.

IV. OF THE VOICE.

HIGH AND LOW TONES.

In speaking, as in singing, the voice may vary from the highest to the lowest tones.

For convenience in practicing, these tones, in their pitch, may be divided into Low, MEDIUM, and HIGH.

LOW TONES.

Low Tones include all tones below those of common conversation.

These are used when reverence, awe, scorn and similar feelings are expressed.

EXERCISES IN LOW TONES. MODEL.

Begin with the line at the top, marked 1, in the musical scale, page 18, in the common tone of conversation, repeating the word ah slowly, and prolonging the sound.

Then go through the line marked 2, in a little lower tone, or pitch, as it is called in music, then the next, marked 3, a little lower still, and so on, as low as the voice will go.

QUESTIONS.—When are both inflections used? (Direction 7.) How may tones, in their pitch, be divided? What do low tones include? When are they used?

INTRODUCTION.

Be careful not to mistake a low tone for a soft tone, which is a very different thing, as shown on page 20.

Practice upon each of the following words and sentences as in the model.

all ball farm lo hoe he arm me fall be call barn we harm go woe Go bravely on! Be firm, whatever tempts thy soul. Alas! alas! all words are vain. It is the holy hour of prayer. Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty. Shall mortal man be just with God?

MEDIUM TONES.

MEDIUM TONES are those commonly used in conversation.

They are appropriate when no particular feeling is to be expressed, as in argument, description, etc.

HIGH TONES.

HIGH TONES include all tones which, in their pitch, or key, are above medium tones.

These are generally used in the expression of strong feeling, as in astonishment, anger, etc.

18

QUESTIONS.—What are medium tones? When are they appropriate? What do high tones include? When are high tones generally used?

EXERCISES IN HIGH TONES.

MODEL.

Begin with the line at the bottom, marked 1, in the common pitch of conversation, repeating the word ah slowly.

Then go through the line marked 2 in a little higher key, being careful to speak no louder but only on a higher pitch.

Then go through the 3d line, and the others in the same way.

Ah.

Practice upon each of the following words and sentences as in the model.

mine high fall ball boy or nor toy for fine wine tall call coy hoy morn

Sing for the oak tree! I hear the rivers roar. Where shall wisdom be found? Deep frowning clouds o'erspread the sky. Oh, haste thee, haste! the lady cries.

LOUD AND SOFT TONES.

LOUD and SOFT tones are very different from high and low tones. In speaking, as in singing, the tones may be very loud or very soft, on the same pitch, or key.
